Welcome to Facebook Video Downloader! The instructions are simple: Share your desired video Facebook Select more options Select Facebook Video Downloader Video is saved in the photo app and also loaded to notification Thanks ROP for MediaKit Shortcuts used to create this page Thanks to D3W10 for Swing E used as updater in this shortcut These shortcuts were added recently SlotsSlot machine with 21 different results. - AwesomeP1zza These are our favorite shortcuts While Facebook lets you save videos to your profile (online), I feel it's better to save Facebook videos to roll the camera on my iPhone. Here's my argument. Once I download a video, I can watch it offline, at any time, on any device. Even if my Internet connection is slow or non-existent. Another reason is that social networking sites are inherently capricious. Let me explain. I've seen the rise and fall of a few social media sites who were the Goliath of their time. MySpace, Friendster, and more recently, Google Plus. If you're like me, you want to save Your Facebook videos to a camera roll on your iPhone. Let's take a look at some of the mobile and web apps that make this possible. Read also: 8 sites/apps to download Facebook videos on Android Save Facebook videos to camera roll 1. Screen recording Your iPhone has a native screen recording feature that you can use to record some of your Facebook videos. This is useful when you just want to record a 2-minute clip from a 5-minute video. To get started, swipe down from the top right to recall Control Center. There you will find the option to record the screen (if it is not there, you may need to add it to the home screen using the settings). Then go to the Facebook video you want to record, open Control Center, and start recording. Set the video and adjust the playback time to allow it to record, and when you're done, reopen Control Center and tap stop recording. This saves the video (along with the original sound) to the camera roll. 2. Siri Siri shortcuts are an easy way to do things that are otherwise tedious and time consuming. You can find a shortcut to almost everything on the Internet or create one of your own. To download videos from Facebook, we will use Facebook Video Downloader, boldly install it on your iPhone using this link. Before we can run the shortcut, we need a Facebook video URL to download the video, but Facebook has gone to extreme lengths to hide the video URL. Here's a quick workaround to find the URL. Go ahead and open the video in the Facebook app on the iPhone you want to download and tap the Share button at the bottom of the post. You'll see the Share worksheet, tap Copy link from options. Now open Safari or any other web browser and paste the Facebook URL that copied. It would look like the picture below. Tap go on your keyboard to load the web page. When the page loads, you'll see that the URL has been unraveled and the URL bar has A URL that the shortcut can understand. Copy this URL to the clipboard. Once you're copying your Facebook video URL, just run the Facebook Video Download shortcut in the Shortcuts app. It takes a few seconds to download the video from the specified URL. After downloading the video, the shortcut will automatically save the video to the iPhone camera roll. You can open the Photos app and find the video there. 3. Safari The above method seems like an exaggeration, and if you don't want to install Siri shortcut, you can use this method which just requires you to open a website in Safari and download videos directly. First, find the video you want to download from Facebook. Tap the Share button in the lower-right corner of the post, and then tap Copy Link. After copying the link, open Safari and go to . When the page load is complete, paste the Facebook URL into the input box. Then just press the Download button next to the input box to load the video downloaded by that URL. You'll now see a preview of the video and the available quality of the videos you can download. Just press and hold the download button and you will get the peek menu, tap download linked file to start the download. The video will start downloading in Download Manager, when the download is complete, tap the video and open the Share menu by pressing the button in the lower left corner. Tap Save Video and you're done. The video was saved in a camera roll. Read also: How to watch Facebook videos with friends 4. Third-party app for older iPhones All of the above methods work great on iPhones running iOS 13 or higher, but if you have an iPhone that works on iOS 12 or below, you won't be able to download videos directly from Safari. That's why Facebook-friendly exists. It is a compact browser designed to allow you to surf Facebook and download videos with a single touch. Honestly, this is the simplest method on this list. Go ahead and install friendly community browser on your iPhone with this link. Once you've downloaded the app to your iPhone, sign in to your Facebook account in the app. Open the video you want to download and tap the Download button at the bottom of the post next to the Share button. When it opens the share menu, tap the download button next to the video. Prompt you to choose a location, tap Save in the Photos app, and allow access to the Photos app. That's it, your video was successfully saved in the camera roll. Save Facebook videos to your camera roll These are some of the best ways to save Facebook videos on your iPhone to your camera roll. I shared more options because now you have a choice. Sometimes some web apps can't download a specific video, while another site might download it. What do you think? Let me know in the comments below. Read also: 8 sites/apps for Facebook videos on Android Facebook, Instagram, Twitter and similar platforms offer their own streaming services. But unlike YouTube, these services do not offer optimal viewing. Finding the video you saw yesterday on your channel becomes a tedious task. This way you can download your favorite videos from Instagram or Twitter. But not many iPhone apps allow you to do that. And a few of the available options are dotted with ads and pop-ups. Fortunately, there is a better way. Use Apple's own automation app shortcuts to download videos from Instagram, Twitter, and Facebook, as well as automate your daily tasks. It's very simple. Let me get through it. What are shortcuts? Shortcuts is a new iOS 12 app released by Apple. This is a user-defined automation application. Basically, you can use shortcuts to create workflow actions that happen one by one. For a routine task that requires four steps, you can use shortcuts to create a workflow that performs the task with a single tap. For example, you can create a shortcut that takes two images, combines them horizontally, the size of the resulting image, and converts it to JPEG, all with a single tap. The best thing about shortcuts is that it allows you to create your own shortcuts with ease. Think of these shortcuts as mini-apps. The best way to get started is by downloading shortcuts and giving it a try without worrying about the details. Download: Shortcuts (free) How to download videos from Instagram To download videos from Instagram, we will use a shortcut called InstaSave. I'll go through the process of downloading and using the shortcut using the shortcut InstaSave. Download our InstaSave shortcut before proceeding. After you download the Shortcuts app, run it and set it up. Now open the InstaSave shortcut link in your browser and tap Download shortcut. This opens the shortcut in the Shortcuts app. Tap the Download Shortcut button again. Picture Gallery (2 Images) Now the InstaSave shortcut has been added to the Library section. (If you're curious about the steps in the shortcut, you can press the menu button to look at the action list.) Then open the Instagram app and go to the video you want to download. There, tap the Menu button and choose Share. Then select shortcuts from the bottom row. If you don't see Shortcuts, tap More and turn it on. Picture Gallery (3 Images) From the list of available shortcuts, tap InstaSave. In a few seconds, the shortcut will run through all the steps, and when you're done, you'll be back to the video. Now when you open the Photos app and go to the camera roll downloaded the video at the bottom of the list. This is -- no need to download the app or pay for the shaved service. Photo Gallery (3 images) How to download Stories from Instagram InstaSave shortcut also includes a feature where you can bulk download Instagram Stories from the last 24 hours (from a public account). First, open an Instagram account of the relevant and press the Menu button. Z Z the URL of the copy profile. Then open the Shortcuts app, and then on the Library tab, tap InstaSave. In the pop-up window, choose Relationships. Then you'll see the download progress in the shortcut box. When you do this, you will receive a check mark in the box. All of this user's stories (both images and videos) from the last 24 hours are now saved to the camera roll. The installation process for this shortcut is the same. Once set up, open the Twitter app and find the video (it also works on Twitter). Then tap the Share button and choose Share tweet by. In the Sharing worksheet, tap Shortcuts and choose Twitter Video Downloader. Photo Gallery (3 Images) You'll see a shortcut to action. In the pop-up window, select the video quality you want: High, Medium, or Low. Once you've downloaded the video, you'll see a confirmation field. Find all downloaded videos in your device's camera roll. Photo Gallery (3 Images) How to download videos from Facebook Download Video is a clearly named shortcut that allows you to download videos from Facebook and many other websites. However, the Facebook app is slightly different when it comes to sharing videos because it doesn't offer the option to copy a link to a video or share it with another app. To help work around this goal, download video allows you to download videos from Facebook using Safari (if that doesn't work, check out other ways to download videos from Facebook). Open Facebook.com in Safari or another browser. Sign in as needed, then go to the video you want to download. On the video page, tap the Share button and choose Shortcuts. Then choose Download Video. Picture Gallery (3 images) In the next pop-up window, select the video quality you want to download. After you download the video, the shortcut opens the Sharing worksheet. Here, tap Save Video to save it to your camera roll. Photo Gallery (3 images) Automate your daily iPhone tasks with shortcuts I hope you've just experienced the beauty of the Shortcuts app. Thanks to its versatility, it has created a downloader for you and integrated it directly into the Photos app. With just a few taps, each video is saved to the gallery. If you'd rather watch movies with a third-party app than the default player, try these best video player apps for iPhone and iPad. And that's just one of many uses. Shortcuts allow you to automate many areas of your life, creating a series of mini-applications that deal with tedious daily tasks. You can even download shortcuts that other users have created. The best way to get started with shortcuts is to automate Task. Shortcuts let you quickly set up multiple alarms, send pre-set messages, and even automate your night routine.
